

ABSTRACT

A golf club or putter having a head and shaft structurally connected so as to be rotatably disposed and to rotate when a golf ball is struck off-center.

Whereby said head has structural means to provide viewable indicia to indicate how much said head rotates, thereby visually making the golfer aware of where on the club head the ball struck.

The indicator is easily reset on the ready to use position.